Write a reflection on cyberbullying by answering the following questions:

1. Have you, or has anyone you know, been cyberbullied?

Yes, I know someone who experienced cyberbullying. Some people made hurtful comments about them online and sent messages that made them feel bad about themselves. Even though it happened through social media, it still affected them in real life.

2.What were the steps you, or that person, took to stop the incident? What are the other ways that you think can combat cyberbullying?

The person I know stopped responding to the messages and blocked the people who were bothering them. They also told someone they trusted about what was happening. I think cyberbullying can also be stopped by reporting harmful accounts, keeping evidence like screenshots, and not sharing or liking hurtful posts. Schools and parents should also teach students about being responsible and respectful online.

3. What did you, or that person, learn from the experience?

They learned that it is important not to keep everything to yourself when someone is bullying you. Talking to a trusted person can make the situation easier to handle. They also learned that words online can hurt people just as much as words said in person.

4. What are your thoughts and realization in today's generation?

I realized that cyberbullying is a serious problem because almost everyone uses social media nowadays. People sometimes say things online that they would never say face-to-face because they feel hidden behind a screen. I think we should be more careful with what we post and say because we never really know what another person is going through. Being kind online may seem like a small thing, but it can make a big difference.
